 Redeemed with thy precious blood:
 Among thy saints make them ascend
 To glory that shall never end.
 Thy people with salvation crown;
 Bless those, O God, that are thine own;
 Govern and lift them up on high.
 Thee, Lord, we daily, daily, daily magnify.

7. Thy name we worship and adore,
 Ever, when time shall be no more;
 Vouchsafe this day to keep us pure,
 From harms and wilful sins secure.
 O let thy mercy, Lord, descend
 On us, whose hopes on thee depend:
 Lord, since my trust is fixed on thee,
 O let me, let me, let me ne'er confounded be.

O God we praise thee, and we own

Edited from John Bishop's A Sett of New Psalm Tunes ... (1722) (BL C.523 p.24). Bishop underlays the first two verses of John Patrick's Long Metre paraphrase of the Te Deum, with the word "holy" thrice repeated in bars 30-32. This presents underlay problems in subsequent verses, which the editor solved as best he can; alternative renderings are possible, such as regarding bars 1-16 as a single LM setting. Temperley's Hymn Tune Index (OUP 1998) regards the tenor as bearing the air. This is debatable; other Bishop strophic settings indeed have tenor air, but this setting is found amongst his anthems, which are soprano led. The setting bears the note "Each part twice over"; its meaning is unclear. Emendation: Bar 18 soprano note 2: original f#.
